

IT FELT IT WAS THERE (2015)

FRANCE, UREPEL

Public sculpture located in a rural area with low electricity density. Every day, after sunset, a light sensor turns on the sculpture's lights for three hours. This light is visible from long distances, becoming a small star in the landscape. Every day the light turns on at a different time given by the rotation of the earth.